

Fertilizer and Chemical Sales Position

About Us:

As an independently-owned company, AgHub Midwest is farmer-focused. Many agribusiness providers lose touch, and we believe focusing on our customer's individual operation is vital in providing quality products and services that they need, from brands we trust.

We take pride in each of our customer's operation and have aligned ourselves with brands and distributors that also take a personalized approach when supplying products our growers need. We are here to provide products that work for each individual's specific operation, not what is easiest for us to promote.

We are growing and looking to expand.
